

After 82 Years, Storms Conquer Lighthouse

Although it resisted howling winds and pounding surfs for 82 years, recent storms finally vanquished North Cove Lighthouse near Aberdeen, Wash., shown after its collapse. Coast Guardsmen removed machinery, set up temporary beacon to guide mariners on hazardous coast.

More Surgery Charges Filed

Arraigned on new felony complaints charging them with criminal conspiracy in the operation of an asserted illegal surgery ring, five women and two men Tuesday were directed by Municipal Judge Wilbur C. Curtis to return for a preliminary examination on the charges Jan. 27.

Two men named in the former complaint were dismissed on the motion of Dep. Dist. Atty. Donald Avery, who filed the revised complaints. They are Stanley Watson, 33, and Antone Jackson, 32, Negro.

Facing prosecution under the amended charges are Mrs. May Ramsey, 57, reputed leader of the ring; Claude Ramsey, 39, her son; Mrs. Esther Ramsey, 29, wife of Claude; Grace Babler, 51, Lillian Foster, 30; Marguerite Baird Green, 34, daughter of Mrs. Ramsey, and William Crissman, 50.

The asserted illegal operations were performed in houses near Torrance, Palos Verdes Estates and Los Angeles.

County May Use Concrete for Sight Posts Along Roads

Placing of pre-cast concrete sight posts along county highways where needed was recommended to the board of supervisors today by the Los Angeles county traffic committee, in the interests of safety and economy. The concrete posts can be obtained cheaper than redwood posts.

Availability of native materials and use of detention camp labor permits the cement concrete posts to be made considerably cheaper than the cost of material alone for redwood posts, according to the report. J. A. Blickensderfer, road department engineer in charge of the county's detention camps, said concrete posts to guide motorists, mostly by night, not only were cheaper and more lasting, but would be more satisfactory to the traveling public as well. A trial installation has been in service along Ramba Pacifico from Roosevelt Highway north to Las Tunas Canyon road. The posts are finished with a wash coat of white cement and lime, and have reflector buttons recessed in them, making them excellent guides by day and night, the committee members concluded after seeing them. Sight posts are used along fills, ditches and culverts.

East Torrance Wants School

Arrangements to petition the Los Angeles board of education for a new elementary school in East Torrance, that section of the Los Angeles Shoestring strip adjoining this city, will be made at a meeting of the district's Chamber of Commerce next Tuesday night, Jan. 14, according to Secretary Rev. Ben Lingenfelter.

He said final details of a concentrated drive to put residents solidly back of the school plan have been worked out and are ready for approval. The East Torrance chamber will meet at Gene Hamilton's real estate office, 1612 West Carson street.

"There are 107 children of elementary school age in the Shoestring strip adjoining Torrance and more families would locate there if school facilities existed," Rev. Lingenfelter pointed out. He also cited traffic hazards and distance existing for East Torrance children who attend Torrance schools.

Other projects which Rev. Lingenfelter said the chamber intends to push in 1941 are completion of Western avenue from Torrance to the harbor, bridging of Carson street over the Los Angeles River to the east and construction of a Shoestring strip fire station in a central location.

Better facilities for utilities make it advisable for the city of Los Angeles to locate its new fire station in the shoestring addition at 168th and Vermont, rather than at 182nd and Vermont, where it was first proposed to locate it, according to R. F. Witter, right of way and land agent.

Witter said he expected to make a report to the Los Angeles city council next week in regard to the new site.

TRAFFIC VICTIM

Local police were asked by the sheriff's office Friday night to notify Walter Cox of 1604 Date street that his son, Raymond, had been killed in an automobile collision at Chula Vista.

To Charles H. Daniels of the Gaylord apartments should go (even at this date) top honors for sending the most unusual Christmas card of 1940.

His greeting to Louis Sobol, noted columnist whose "New York Cavalcade" is syndicated in scores of newspapers was nothing less than a record claim to a potential gold mine in the Mojave Desert!

Daniels, whose hobby of razor-blade carvings in the form of portraits and caricatures in wood of noted persons has attracted wide attention, revealed the background to his unique Christmas card this week.

Among the "upper bracket" columnists who opened their columns to him in recognition of his skill with a razor blade, Sobol gave Daniels high praise last year for a caricature of himself. As the recent holidays approached, the local artisan began pondering on what to send out for Yuletide salutations that would be different from the usual brand of "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

"The Mojave Desert gave me an idea," Daniels recalled. "Much of my leisure time has been spent there and I occasionally started a mining claim. In one particular instance I duly recorded a fairly good low-grade 20 acres and received my recorded papers from San Bernardino county."

"I then drew straws to see which one among the syndicated writers who had mentioned during the past year would receive these papers as a holiday greeting—Sobol won the draw and I mailed them to him."

The New York writer acknowledged the unusual greeting in the following letter received by Daniels late last week: "Many thanks for your kind note and the rare document entitling me to a share in gold mine. Never have owned a gold mine or even a part of one, naturally I am thrilled."

Daniels said that "perhaps next Christmas there may be enough claims to go as greetings to all my friends."
